Special Projects Editor

CHOICE has an opening for a special projects editor. The successful candidate will develop and manage CHOICE's new online publishing program, including Web-based products. He or she will also be responsible for managing the CHOICE review program in political science and education or a related set of fields. This position reports to the CHOICE Managing Editor.

Founded in 1964, CHOICE currently reviews over 6,500 new scholarly print and electronic titles annually and is the leading review journal for academic and research libraries. CHOICE is a publishing unit of the Association of College and Research Libraries, a division of the American Library Association.

Position requirements are a minimum of 5 years relevant experience in an academic library, library vendor, or publishing environment and a successful record of new product development. You must have a demonstrated ability to develop, plan, and implement new projects, and to set priorities and manage multiple projects; experience with the development of one or more Web-related projects; and evidence of vision, innovation, and market savvy. An undergraduate degree in the social sciences or a related area is required; an M.L.S. is strongly preferred.

Salary range is $43,677-$67,633. Excellent benefits include low cost medical/dental insurance, TIAA/CREF 403(b) retirement plan, and 4 weeks vacation.
